PRODUCT DESCRIPTION (Line 1 of the Back Label)

The first line of the back label is a description of the product. We have to follow a specific order mentioning first the type of wine, then the color and then the sugar content classification (table below).

You should first write “Espumante” or “Champagne” (if your sparkling wine is from this region).

For the color, you should write “Branco” (White) or “Rosé”

For the sugar content, you should follow the table below.

- If the sugar content of your wine is below or equal to 3 g/L, then you should write “Nature”.
- If it’s greater than 3 and below or equal to 8 g/L, then you should write “Extra-Brut”.
- If it’s greater than 8 and below or equal to 15 g/L, then you should write “Brut”.
- If it’s greater than 15 and below or equal to 20 g/L, then you should write “Seco”.
- If it’s greater than 20 and below or equal to 60 g/L, then you should write “Meio-seco”
- And finally if it’s greater than 60, then you should write “Doce” (Sweet).
